The business world is more competitive today than in past generations. Decision makers understand they have to get things right the first time using current models and measurement methods to make those decisions. The classes taught in the Department of Finance and Economics give students the background to make those decisions.

Experienced faculty work with students in both the theory and application of the principles of finance, economics, statistics, and operations management. The integration of the skills learned in these disciplines when applied through the strategic management course during the last semester will support students' development as business professionals.

JOB OUTLOOK

The need for financial information is increasing at all levels of business and government. Job demand is high, particularly in larger metropolitan areas, and the employment outlook is excellent. Those trained in finance and economics with a computer emphasis may enter highly computerized fields such as fund management, energy, securities, securities market regulation, or government financial management. Those trained in finance and economics with a fluency in one or more foreign language may enter the fast growing areas of international business, international finance, import/export, or foreign securities analysis.

A Bachelor of Science Degree (BS) in Business with a Finance and Banking Specialization is available for students interested in this area.

PROGRAMS

Students interested in finance and economics may receive a Bachelor of Science Degree (BS) in Business with a Finance and Banking Specialization. An Associate in Science (AS) School of Business transfer degree is available for students planning to transfer to another college or university in Utah. (See the School of Business section of the catalog for details on the AS degree.)
